Cracking Crowdfunding's Two Biggest Problems: Success and Profit

+ Comment now

Crowdfunding is occasionally big news – for example when a project over performs on Kickstarter (remember that Pebble watch). But underneath the legislative changes and the growing list of projects that have used crowdfunding, there are some interesting developments.

As the United States continues its efforts to destroy Al-Qaeda, Syrian-controlled Lebanon is increasingly becoming a haven for the group's remnants and other leading terrorist organizations.

Syria, which controls Lebanon, is allowing the country to serve as a haven for leading terrorist organizations, including remnants of al-Qaeda seeking refuge from Afghanistan.

At least 25 percent of the groups designated as foreign terrorist organizations by the State Department have a presence in Lebanon and are receiving some form of Syrian support. Despite repeated calls from the United States to end its support for terror, Damascus with the help of Iran, is continuing to grant these groups safe haven, logistical assistance, training facilities and political backing.

Syrian and Iranian support for Hezbollah activities in the south, as well as training and assistance to Palestinian rejectionist groups in Lebanon, help permit terrorist elements to flourish," according to the State Department's recently released annual terror report, Patterns of Global Terrorism. The report also notes that the Lebanese government has so far refused to freeze the assets of Hezbollah or close down the offices of rejectionist Palestinian organizations.

Iran's close cooperation with Lebanon-based terrorist groups was evident during a recent visit by Iranian President Mohammad Khatami to Beirut. Following Khatami's meeting with Hezbollah representatives, the terror group's Secretary General Hassan Nasrallah said, "The position is one of solidarity between the Islamic Republic [Iran], Syria, Lebanon [and] the resistance."

Weapons shipments are delivered regularly from Tehran and Damascus to Hezbollah terrorists in Lebanon, resulting in a attack of at least 10,000 Katyusha rockets with the capability of hitting major Israeli population centers. When the Palestinian Authority (PA) attempted to import more than 50 tons of Iranian arms aboard the Karine-A ship, those munitions were confiscated by PA financial advisor Fadi Shihabi during a meeting in Lebanon.
